

Improving a Home Interior

You may wish to make some of these changes

Our house looks so ugly to me, still a young nation recently. But I don't know how to make it look like other people's.

And there are many other women in a like predicament, says a contributor to the Chicago Inter Ocean. They simply haven't the taste for home decoration and arrangement that seems natural in others. To all such women, who are discontented with the appearance of their house interior and cannot afford to employ a professional decorator to show them what is wrong and help them decorate it, I would recommend the following:

First of all—is your house too crowded? Go over it carefully, room by room, and consider what might be stored in the attic or given away. See if you can't exchange a large table in a small room for the small table in a large room and get a truer proportion in that way. Consider the rearrangement of the furniture so as to get more space. Don't hurry about it, either, but think each room over carefully and try each change to be sure it is right.

Next—are your pictures hung right? Pictures should be hung where they can be seen easily—about on the level with the eyes. And they should be hung flat against the wall, and not slanting away from it at the top. I saw a little sitting room absolutely transformed by having the pictures hung not too long. Of course, some very large pictures, such as oil portraits or large landscapes, should be hung pretty high if the room has a high ceiling, but in the average home the pictures are too high, and they will look more restful and natural if you put them where you can look at them without bending your head backward.

Now take a look at your sofa or couch pillows. Are they in many colors? If they are, try covering half of them with some plain material, cool, gray-green, denim, or tan crash, and see how much more restful your room instantly becomes. Dull blue denim may be used, also, if blue suits your other upholstery.

While you are wondering why your home isn't pretty you might notice the wall paper. Plain or two-toned paper makes a splendid background for pictures and furniture. And always remember that red paper is only for large rooms that are to be put to rather serious uses—such as a library. Otherwise you will find that red paper is not looking and makes your room look smaller.

Table covers and lamp shades are notable offenders against good artistic effects in many rooms. Keep them both pretty simple, and remember they are for use as well as ornament. Linen table covers with cross-stitch trees in green and brown are ideal for summer and the cretonne lamp shades in soft, not-too-bright patterns are also very good in effect.

A good many rooms have too much bric-a-brac which makes them look busy and cluttered. Clean out about half of the vases and jugs and brassware and see if it isn't an improvement.

A MASSILLON GIRL

The new Biograph moving picture studio in New York city. The studio has just been completed and the Misses Gish, in leading roles, will assist in opening it.

"From weeks," continued Miss Lillian, "spent among the desert sands of Southern California, where we had tents as sleeping rooms, tents as dressing rooms, a soap box as a make-up stand, and a wide expanse of blistering sand as our stage, we go to the new studio, which we are told is the most wonderful building of its kind in the world, in fact, it is said to be one of the present wonders of the world. It cost over a million dollars. Here we will have fifteen acres of space in the heart of New York city, devoted to acting before moving picture cameras. The roof of the building is fitted up for outdoor settings. The building contains apartments for every sort of interior setting. There are elevators for taking automobiles and every conceivable kind of theatrical property up to the roof. You people who pay your nickel or your dime to see a moving picture show, don't often think that it is a business of such a magnitude, do you?"

$40,000 WALL DESTROYED.

"Take for instance, 'The Mothering Heart,' in which I take the leading part, and in which I am told, is to be shown in one of the Massillon houses in a week or two. The cafe scene in this film alone cost $2,300. In 'Judith and Holofernes,' in which I also appear, it cost $40,000 to construct a reproduction, in masonry, of the walls and city of Jerusalem, only to have it blown up and absolutely destroyed in the twinkling of an eye before a moving picture-man's camera. This picture took two rolls of film. You won't see it for a dime—for a while at least. It has not yet been released, but when it is, it will be shown at $2 admission prices. It is the most expensive picture ever produced in America—and probably second to only one other picture in the world.

LEARNED TO DRIVE AUTOMOBILE.

"Rehearse? Yes, it does take some. For instance, I have just learned to drive an automobile by way of preparation for some parts I will be called upon to fill in New York city. I drove a machine into a ditch and it took four horses to pull it out. I killed a chicken, ran into a gravel pit, and brought the machine back under its own power all in the same day. You won't see that on any screens, however. That was just behind the scenes."

MANY TRYING EXPERIENCES.

"Have I had any trying experiences? Well, we have all kinds you know. Just let me tell you one though. You may see it reproduced on one of the Biograph films that has not yet been released. Mother, who is always with sister and me, and clippings and keeps house for us, never knew of this picture until after it was all taken. You see, I was the heroine, who was the helpless victim in a runaway. It wasn't a fake runaway either. It was the most realistic one I ever saw. How those horses after they had been fished into their brackish pond, did run, the lines dragging on the ground, and I was helplessly tossing about in the swaying wagon. Ahead of us, perched in the rear of an automobile, was the moving picture camera, recording it all. For this occasion, the company had secured as the hero, 'Bobbie' Burns, who they say is the greatest cow boy and horse back rider in the west. 'He tore after me on his horse as my runaway team haloped down the canyon road, dashed along the side of the wagon, reached over, grabbed me, and pulled me to the back of his horse."

NEAR DEATH IN 'ACT.'

"They told me afterward that at the moment that I was pulled out of the wagon my runaway horses were going at the rate of twenty-eight miles an hour. They were able to estimate the rate of speed accurately because the automobile in front of us had to keep the same distance ahead so as to take the picture properly and accordingly had to maintain the same rate of speed as the runaway horses. The speedometer at the time of my rescue registered twenty-eight miles an hour. So it wasn't such a slow runaway, was it? But I really did suffer physically from this experience. I was bruised and black and blue, my legs were lacerated, and I was pretty well done up for weeks and after it was all over I was very glad that the manager had abandoned his original intention, which was to locate the runaway on a road along a mountain cliff."

"What were my sensations, did you say? Well, what I recall most vividly is that just as my rescue came up to the side of my wagon I was actually hysterical, but as he lifted me over his shoulder, my eyes caught sight of that familiar camera and then I did just what I was expected to do—I fainted. That feature was the most realistic bit of acting I ever did."

SHIPWRECKED AT SEA.

And then, just as modestly, Miss

Dorothy told how she, with others, went out into the Pacific ocean on a ship, being especially for the purpose, how the ship caught fire, how the passengers jumped overboard from the doomed vessel, how they were tossed about upon the waves, and how their bodies (dead for the purpose of the picture) were finally washed up on the beach—the moving picture camera all the while keeping up its merry rick.

"This is some of the glamour of the life of a moving picture actress," said she, "but, of course, it is not all like that. Nerve, do you say? Well, may be it is. We don't think of it in that way, and I don't suppose you do when you see the pictures. Of course, we are in real danger lots of times, but do you know that I thought mostly of the temperature of the water on this expedition. It was frightfully cold."

Gun play, horse back riding, swimming, canoeing, automobiling, in fact, everything but flying machines seems to have entered into the experience of the young ladies. The company, of which the sisters form a part, will number 600 people when it opens in New York city today. The Gish sisters expect to spend the summer and autumn there. Later they expect, in the same line of work, to go abroad where Miss Lillian is already extensively featured and advertised—much more than in this country, as leading lady in the films in which she appears Miss Dorothy, between acts, has been devoting her spare time to writing scenarios, and has already had four accepted. Her ambition is to eventually devote all of her time to writing.

"And say to my friends in Massillon, won't you please," said Miss Lillian, with glistering eyes, "that it seems so good for me to be back. I think it is the greatest spot on the face of the earth. I think of the dear old town and my friends here so often. It is so seldom that I get back and in the future I will get back even more seldom. It will always be home to me. You will see our pictures flashed on the screens back here once in a while, and when you do you will sometimes see me smile. Won't you please think then that I am smiling for, and in fond recollection of, my many dear friends back in good old Massillon?"

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS PICNIC.

Mrs. J. H. Bowden's Sunday school class held a picnic Saturday afternoon and evening at Meyers' lake. In spite of the inclemency of the weather about twenty turned out and reported having a most delightful time. A delicious and very much enjoyed banquet was served about 6 o'clock, reflecting much credit to those having part in it. The party included Miss Marian Benedict, Miss Fay Arthur, Miss Grace Masters, Miss Ruth Wells, Miss Grace Hinderer, Miss Fay Reed, Miss H. Elizabeth Penman, Miss M. Mardelle Ayers, Miss Helen Rupert, Miss Ruth Banyard, Miss Helen Shearer, Mrs. Harry K. Reinhold, Mrs. Jack Long, Mrs. J. H. Bowden, Miss Miss Gwendolen Benedict, Miss Hilda and Elsie Kemery, of Columbus, Miss Hazel Blackburn, of Canton, Virginia and Lorraine Bowden.

Society

A COMING MUSICAL.

A musical, the programme of which will be composed of popular airs, will be given at the Lakeside Country club, on Friday evening. The committee of hostesses for this occasion will include Miss Helen Putnam, of Massillon, Miss Ann Ziolaars and Miss Pauline Rider, of Canton.

DINNER AT THE COUNTRY CLUB.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. McLain, of Wellman street, are spending a week at the Lakeside Country club. At a dinner given Saturday evening at the club they had as guests from Massillon, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice R. Bissell, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. John E. McLain, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Taggart, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Hess.

DR. EYMAN'S DINNER.

Dr. and Mrs. Eymann gave a dinner at the superintendent's residence at the Massillon state hospital, Saturday evening. The guests were Colonel and Mrs. W. H. Morgan, of Alliance; Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Grant, of Canton; Mrs. Carrie J. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Conrad and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Pocock.

FOLDING BED HURTS PASTOR.

Closes on Clergyman Who is Now Suffering From Sprained Back and Numerous Bruises.

Greely, Col., July 7.—A folding bed in which the Rev. J. L. Thompson of this city was sleeping folded during the night and the minister had a narrow escape from death. The whole town is laughing and wondering what the preacher said when he battled fiercely to free himself from the malicious bed. As it is he is confined to another bed (nonfolding) with a badly sprained back and is suffering from numerous bruises and strains received during the battle with the slient and merciless foe bent upon his destruction.

GRIEF LEADS TO SUICIDE.

Man Who Lost His Wife Shoots Himself After Trying to Strangle Two Weeks' Old Baby.

New York, July 7.—Grief at the death of his wife of less than a year caused Thomas Watson of Rockaway Beach to commit suicide after trying to strangle his two weeks' old baby. Mr. and Mrs. Watson came from England about nine months ago and since the birth of her baby had been critically ill.

A short time after she died Sunday, Watson went to the home of a friend who had been caring for the child. Taking the baby in his arms and a bottle of milk in his pocket, the father went to a clump of trees near the beach where the baby was fed. He then knotted a handkerchief tightly about the child's neck and shot himself. The baby was unconscious when found but was saved by quick action. The father died in a few minutes.

ASTONISHES MEN OF MEDICINE.

Inmate of State Prison Adopts New Method to Build Up His Dilapidated Constitution.

Trenton, N. J., July 7.—Thomas Doyle, a 20-year-old prisoner at the state prison, has discovered something which is attracting the attention of medical men. Doyle came into the prison several years ago with a delicate constitution. He commenced to steam his feet every night with mustard and hot water, followed by a brisk massage.

His health is now above that of the other inmates of the institution and his belief is that the strange pallid complexion is what built up his system. His theory is that all of the impurities of the body are removed by this.

DON TROUSERS TO PLAY BALL.

Women in Male Attire Deft Men Who Wear Hobble Skirts and Corsets.

Philadelphia, July 7.—A baseball game between nine women clad in trousers and a team of men wearing hobble skirts and corsets was the principal attraction at the celebration at the Drexel Middle Bible class home in Lansdowne.

More than 1,000 persons assembled to witness this contest. The women's team, composed of members of the Bible classes, defeated the men by the score of 12 to 5. The men stumbled and floundered about the field grotesquely, while the women, unencumbered by dresses, gave a splendid exhibition of ball playing. Of special interest was the pitching of Miss Edith Brown.

Ten Hurt at Pleasure Resort.

New York, July 7.—Six persons were seriously injured, one fatally, and 10 others were bruised and shaken up when five cars attached to an aerial swing plunged to the ground at Midland Beach, S. I.
